About us

Originally, founded in 1913, as the Diesel Engine Users Association. The Institution of Diesel and Gas Turbine Engineers (IDGTE) has evolved as a leading, independent, international, professional body serving the interests of those involved in the design, development, manufacture, application, operation and maintenance of reciprocating internal combustion engines and gas turbines, their related fields, and emerging energy conversion technologies.

Our members are engineers, managers and companies who share the IDGTE's passion for innovation and technological advances in design and operations of gas turbines and reciprocating engines that meet the demands of industry today. The IDGTE welcome associate members drawn from a variety of related businesses and a number of student members.

Our activities, including our annual luncheon, conferences and training workshops, are regarded by the industry as a valuable addition to the service we provide exclusively to members and associates.

The proposition

The IDGTE will host the UK's largest lunch gathering of professionals in, or associated with, the diesel and gas turbine industries in London on Wednesday 14 April 2010.

The luncheon is one of the most eagerly anticipated events on the IDGTE calendar and is, for many of our members, a highlight of the year. The luncheon is a perfect mix of a networking, business and social occasion. The annual luncheon offers an excellent opportunity for you to demonstrate your commitment to the diesel and gas turbine industries as well as engage and build positive relationships with IDGTE member, associate and non-member organisations. The IDGTE have developed three sponsorship packages that enable your organisation to:

- Align your brand with the highly regarded IDGTE
- Access unique networking opportunities with an audience of senior decision makers across the energy industry
- Provide an unparalleled opportunity for your company to promote your products and services
- Show your support for the IDGTE
